I Don't Care About the Music

The
award glasses.

Second year.
Guitar.
Suzushiro
Akane.

I first met her at our university's laid-back
light
music club.

It was at the new member welcoming party.

Please don't single me out like this... It's embarrassing.

These glasses were once worn by a senpai from this club who somehow made a major debut.

For a great performance in the show earlier, I present these to Suzushiro.

Freshmen—work hard and you too could earn this.

Who?

She looked so out of place, it was pitiful...

Slinking away...

She's leaving.

Just sit down already! We're waiting!

Ruriko-

Thanks

Senpai, some peach

You're a first-year, right? You know how to get to the station?

I'll take you

Ah-um...

...I'm quitting.

"Oh-huh" it okay
No need to speak formally—you're a first year, but it's fine.
I don't mind.
(We're adults.)

What a cute voice—
are you
a vocalist?
Have you already joined a band?

Let's add new members
down
→
oops.

Aaah—
You're so awkward it's impossible, huh~?

Weird
glasses...

Is it because your playback
count is in the single digits?

No!

Please.

No.

Why
not?

No
way.

I put it up online.

Where?
Show me.

Hm?
Without
anyone to listen?
That's fun
for you?

I can make music by myself

Huh—
is this a cover?

It's an original

Wanna come to my place
so I can join in
on guitar?

Hey,
y'know...

From
then on,
Shimoda Ruriko,
like a stray,

Grew more and more attached to me.

Then
suddenly,

First
suddenly,

Big Sister Sweet Potato

*Each time
I played with Ruriko,*

I cared less and less about the music.

The club and guitar were always just hobbies.

After graduation, find a normal job, and at some point, get married.

I tend to be pragmatic.

I tend to be pragmatic

Or, I did, and yet—

What's this?

Together.

Enmeshed.

You haven't been singing lately.

We're sinking deeper into depravity.

Don't you need to work on your piece?

...It's
fine.

Demet

Lecture

Oh?
What
day is it.

This is wrong—

I don't care—

about
the music...

I'm holding her back.

Wah! It's the senpai who somehow made it bag.

Don't be misled by ephemeral feelings—

Just like guitar and the club, this was just something to pass the time while getting through school.

You know, I —

That's no reason to...

I never planned to keep this up through graduation.

Rurkio has talent, it'd go to waste if she keeps on like this.

I think—

...But,

I'm sure I'll always love you...

Ah— When you get a boyfriend, just don't talk about us and you'll be fine, okay?

It will be like I never existed~

What
did you say?

Sorry,
I couldn't hear you.

I will soon be forgotten.

Then she'll be fine.

If her feelings
go only
so far that she can't even say it
twice,

I don't know any of these songs...

She even went and dyed
her hair
blonde...

But
still,
I'm glad.

murmur

Huh?

What's going on?

murmur

She
certainly would not be standing up there
now.

If she were still as dissolute as she was back
then,

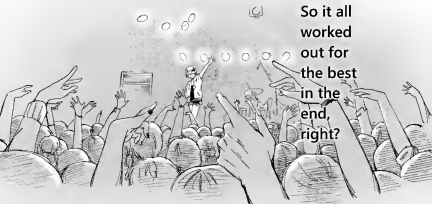

Sorry,
let's play
that again.

Aren't the glasses
I know.

The glasses
from the live
broadcast.

So it all worked out for the best in the end,
right?

Day
after
without pain...

My
vanilla-colored schedule
book...

Drifting
through Sunday~

milky mint
sky~

A quiet
afternoon~

Yearning
for someone and crying...

But—

I'm sure I'd be happier

Haah, haah...

That doesn't mean all of you will like me
forever.

It was fun singing with you all here
tonight.

But I
know,

But...

But,

When you grow older, you might think of this as a mistake of youth or just an embarrassing
memory.

Tomorrow,
you might really get into something else.

Don't erase me
from your memory... please.

Don't make this into something that never happened.

A black and white manga panel showing a girl in a short-sleeved shirt and shorts standing on a stage. Below her, a crowd of people is visible with their hands raised. The scene is framed by jagged, starburst-like shapes.

*What'd
you say!?*

*Sorry,
I couldn't
hear you—*

We love you!

A close-up of a girl's face, looking slightly to the side with a concerned expression. Her hair is dark and shoulder-length.

*I can't hear you
at all!!*

A view of a girl's legs and feet as she stands on a stage. She is wearing high-heeled shoes. The background shows a crowd of people.

One more time!!

We love you!

A girl with dark hair is shown from the chest up, looking forward with a surprised or excited expression. She is surrounded by a crowd of people, some of whom are also looking towards her.

We love you!

...Just
please don't say

What?

You want another chance?

You don't care
about
music...
